Donor Support Makes New Breast Care Center a Reality at Beaumont Hospital, Wayne

This summer, a new breast care center will open its doors at Beaumont Hospital, Wayne, helping meet the needs of a growing number of patients seeking care at this site.

The $4.2 million project will help reduce wait times for critical screening appointments and allow for additional diagnostic services.

The center was made possible through the generous contributions of dozens of donors including the multi-specialty private practice radiology group, Drs. Harris, Birkhill, Wang, Songe and Associates, P.C., who gave a generous lead gift of $1 million. Other donors to the project include individual physicians, physician groups, community leaders, clinical staff, and Beaumont Health employees. The fundraising campaign was led by Dr. Ashok B. Jain, chief medical officer at Beaumont, Wayne.

The new center will include three mammography rooms, three ultrasound rooms, a bone density suite and a welcoming reception area. It also will be adjacent to the main hospital — the center currently is located across the street — creating a more convenient destination for care.

The center also will put a significant focus on the latest technologies in mammography screening including digital breast tomosynthesis machines (3D mammography). An Invenia Automated Breast Ultrasound (ABUS) unit will also be available, allowing for better visibility of dense breast tissue during breast cancer screenings. Mammograms remain the gold standard for detecting breast tumors, according to physicians, and supplemental imaging options will make a significant difference for women with dense breasts.

According to the American Cancer Society, breast cancer remains the most common cancer in American women, and the second leading cause of cancer death in women.

Since 2007, breast cancer death rates have been steady in women younger than 50 years old but have continued to decrease in older women. From 2013 to 2017, the death rate decreased by 1.3 percent per year. These decreases are believed to be the result of finding breast cancer earlier through screening and increased awareness, as well as better treatments. The new breast care center at Wayne will be a valuable resource in continuing to detect cancers earlier and achieve positive outcomes for our patients.
